LONG FLIGHT SPEED RECORD SET UP TO-DAY

Ulm and Companions Break
Kingsford-Smith's England-

Plane Lands At City Of Derby

Time of 9,520-mile Air Journey 6 Days 17 Hours
45 Minutes

Canadian Press
Derby, West Australia, Oct. 19.—Charles T. F. Ulm and his three companions arrived here at 4:15 p.m. Greenwich meridian time 8:15 a.m. Victoria time) to-day, establishing a new record for a flight from England.

The fliers beat the record of Air Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith by eleven hours. The latter's time was seven days, four hours and forty-five minutes for the flight by stages.

In a final burst of speed after it had seemed the chances were gone, the Ulm quartette completed the journey from England in six days, seventeen hours and forty-five minutes.

In racing to Derby from Sourabaya, Java, on the final hop, the Ulm party took a slightly shorter route than Sir Charles, who flew from Sourabaya to Wyndham.

PLANE IN MUD
At Calcutta, India, and again at Sourabaya, the Ulm crew was held up by soft flying field. Two attempts to take off at Sourabaya failed because the plane stuck fast in the mud. Finally the quartette got away on the third attempt, more than two hours after the first try.

Before departure from Singapore yesterday evening, Ulm said he did not expect to beat the record.

DISTANCE 9,520 MILES
The final hop to Derby was 950 miles, while the total mileage from Perth, England, starting point, was 9,520. The total mileage of Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith was 9,500 miles.

G. V. Allen and P. G. Taylor took turns at pilotage, while John Edwards acted as navigator on the Ulm flight. The four must fly on to Sydney in order to have their records officially recognized. It was recalled Ulm first gained fame when he accompanied Sir Charles on a Transpacific flight.

Sidney, B.C., Oct. 19.—The methods by which the Liberal Party proposes to put into effect its work and wages policy for British Columbia was explained by T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Liberal Party, to an interested crowd of 400 electors in Stacey's Hall, yesterday evening, where the Liberal leader was given a cordial ovation at a meeting he addressed in support of the Liberal candidate, Alexander McDonald. During the course of his address Mr. Pattullo paid a tribute to John Hart, Victoria candidate, as the best Finance Minister British Columbia ever had.

"The policy of the Liberal Party is work and wages. I am entirely opposed to the dole system. It is breaking down the morale of our people, and especially of our young people housed in unemployment camps of British Columbia. I tremble to think what effect in the way of forming habits during an important period of their lives these camps will have," said Mr. Pattullo.

Possibility Russia Will Join League Of Nations Is Seen

United States Government Is Reported Studying Plan to Recognize Soviet

By Joseph E. Sharkey, Associated Press Correspondent

Geneva, Oct. 19.—Reports the United States is studying the question of recognition of Russia awakened new hopes in international circles to-day the U.S. S.R. may be induced to join the League of Nations. There have been clear indications, it was recalled, the League is flitting with Russia and Russia with the League.

Statements were impressed with the address of Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Chairman of the Disarmament Conference, before the international peace associations several days ago, in which he linked the United States with Russia in his praise. He called them "partners in that great adventure of organization for peace."

They were struck also by Mr. Henderson's noticeable tribute to the Soviet Union for its weighty contributions to peace efforts in adhering to the Kellogg Pact and in its non-aggression and conciliation treaties.

With Russia's eastern neighbor, Japan, resigned from the League, and its western neighbor, Germany, potentially abandoning the Geneva Conference, international circles are wondering whether the world will not see a big evolution in international politics, with Moscow marching definitely to Geneva.

Ritchie squarely on the shoulders of Judge Robert E. Duer and State Attorney John B. Robins of Princess Anne.

Governor Ritchie directed Judge Duer, member of the bench of the first judicial district, and State Attorney Robins "to take immediate action to set in motion necessary legal machinery for apprehension of those responsible for or who participated in the lynching."

Armwood, brought back here from Baltimore less than seventeen hours earlier to face accusations of attacking an aged white woman, was wrenched from the protection of twenty-five state policemen yesterday evening and his body was finally left in a gasoline soaked pyre on the main business corner.

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—Veil of official reticence shrouds conversations held by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, S. J. Hungerford, acting president of the Canadian National, James A. Richardson of Winnipeg, president of the Canada Airways, and Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, chief of the general staff, here beyond affirming "conversations had taken place," officials would not indicate their nature.

In the last few months Canadian aviation and post office officials have been canvassing possibilities of developing Canada's air lines and hooking these up with existing railway services. At the same time they have been participants in a number of meetings with United States and British air interests seeking to establish air routes between the North American continent and Europe.

It is understood reports are being prepared for submission to the government, covering the whole future of aviation development in Canada, with special attention to its international aspect.

Associated Press
New York, Oct. 19.—According to a Washington dispatch in The New York Herald-Tribune to-day, a prospective shipment of 500,000 cases of Canadian whisky to the United States for medicinal purposes was thwarted by a presidential embargo.

President Roosevelt has in mind the possibility of using the vast United States market for liquor as a lever in affecting trade agreements with other countries, Canada included, the dispatch said.

In part, the dispatch stated: "The President's position was explained in part by his unwillingness to give away what he considered a good trading advantage in his international economic negotiations."

"Mr. Roosevelt is known to have made such a suggestion for the benefit of Canada, saying the new American liquor market. He had also in mind the Canadian market, which is circumscribed by the Ottawa agreement."

Reception at Meeting at Sidney

By Special Representative of The Times

Sidney, B.C., Oct. 19.—Greeted by an audience of 400 persons as a native son of the district running in his own constituency, Alex. McDonald, Liberal candidate for the Gulf Island was given a cordial reception at his first campaign meeting held at Stacey's Hall yesterday evening at the meeting addressed by T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader.

Mr. McDonald briefly presented his stand and outlined his ambition to help the constituency in which he was born and was warmly supported by Major Guy Boyer who was his rival for the honor of nomination. Major Boyer urged the electors to elect a man who lived among them and understood their needs rather than a resident from Vancouver seeking their votes.

Abandoning preliminaries Mr. McDonald plunged into a lucid exposition of his stand in the campaign. It was unnecessary to discuss the defunct government, he said; people were interested in action. The Liberal platform offered a sound, progressive course with substantial, practical and effective policies.

Reports in Geneva hitherto have been that Germany might reconsider the decision to quit the League.

Two years' notice are required.

KIDNAP HUNT IS WIDENED

U.S. Secret Service Gives

Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 19.—Recent success in rounding up abductors has prompted the United States Department of Justice to undertake a fuller, co-ordinated investigation of the twenty-month-old Lindbergh kidnapping.

Sanctioned by President Roosevelt in his desire to consolidate all abduction investigations under the Justice Department, the move follows disclosure of withdrawal from the case of the lone income tax investigator that has been working on it.

Attorney-General Homer Cummings, after conferences with the President, ordered J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Justice Department's division of investigation, to assume jurisdiction over federal activities in the Lindbergh case, with a view to giving New Jersey authorities full benefit of data on known abductors amassed by the division since passage of the federal kidnapping law.

Health Expert, 75, Says People Wear Too Many Clothes

HEALTHIEST MAN
Dr. R. G. Jackson, Former Victoria, Remarkable Example of Natural Living

Wears No Overcoat or Underwear and Has Never Had a Cold in Twenty Years

There is no such thing as old age consciousness. Anyone who is skeptical about it may be expected to radically change his views after having a talk with Dr. Robert G. Jackson, Toronto health expert, who is the living embodiment of health and perpetual youth.

He is an outstanding example of his doctrine of natural living, and he is here to-day to take the citizens into his confidence and prove to them how it is possible to keep well and live to a ripe old age without realizing the passing of the years.

Dr. Jackson has discovered the secret of living as nature intended man should live. Seventy-six years of age he is a splendid specimen of proper living habits. He claims that he can do anything a young man of twenty-two can do—and better. He does a more active day's work than most people, and never tires.

WALKS TEN MILES DAILY
Never a day passes but what he walks ten miles. He has been known to do twenty-eight miles. He claims that five hours' sleep is all that is necessary for the normally healthy person.

"I only sleep five hours, because I am not toxic," he said in the course of an interview this morning after he had accomplished more than the average man does in a day. "If you are toxic and the blood is sluggish, you need more sleep. I do not eat meat—I haven't eaten meat for twenty-five years—but I am not against meat eating. I eat natural foods which build strength. The building up of the alkaline reserve in the bloodstream is the key to the bloodstream is the key to the bloodstream is the key to the bloodstream."

HOME MARKETS BENNETT'S TOPIC

Canadian Press
Regina, Oct. 19.—Practically 80 per cent of the aggregate production in Canada is utilized by Canadians themselves. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett said in emphasizing the importance of home markets before a luncheon of the Regina Board of Trade to-day.

The greater co-ordination of this interchange of commodities between the urban and rural population, which was about equally divided, would be a big factor in bringing about improved conditions in Canada, Mr. Bennett said.

Chancellor Says Reports Abroad Teutons Getting Ready To Fight Baseless

Foreigners Misunderstand Meaning of Revolution, Says Hitler to Newspaper
Correspondents; France's Defense Measures Are Increased While Parliament Debates New Form of Control of Sale and Manufacture of Armaments.

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 19.—France is showing a determination to watch her armaments more closely than ever in the face of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's activities in Germany.

Premier Edouard Daladier favors control of sale and manufacture of armaments, but the Chamber of Deputies committee on finance has sought to go even farther. It insisted on complete nationalization of industry by a vote of 30 to 16 on an amendment presented by the Socialist leader, Leon Blum.

However, the Premier so vigorously opposed the declared cost and was so insistent a change was impossible at the present time the committee reversed the vote and returned to the control idea, 16 to 12.

The issue, far from closed, was deemed likely to produce a heated debate in the chamber, as the Socialists strongly favor a state monopoly.

By Louis F. Lochner, Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 19.—An unusual decree by Finance Minister von Schuler-Krosigk indicated to-day Germany is getting ready in earnest to ward off any attacks from the air.

All moneys expended by private individuals or firms for advancing Germany's protection from air attacks can, under the decree, be deducted 100 per cent from the income in making income and corporation tax returns.

"By the Treaty of Versailles," it reads, "Germany was forbidden to build up a military air force and hence we were denied the most effective weapon against air attacks."

"All the greater importance attaches to civil air protection measures calculated to ensure the population against danger of attacks from the air," it continued, adding:

"In the interests of the population as well as the national defence such measures must be most widely encouraged also by tax reduction."

SQUADS DRILL
The defence decree observes air protection primarily concerns industrial undertakings, business and a large number of employees and house owners—all of whom should take measures of protecting their employees, plants, houses and families.

Measures suggested include building of bomb proof cellars, acquiring gas masks, installing alarm arrangements, and drilling squads in the use of defensive instruments.

Even for substituting concrete floors instead of wooden and strengthening foundations by girders, tax reductions will be granted.

DECLARED MISUNDERSTANDING

Concerning War, Hitler said: "The claim uttered abroad the German people are preparing enthusiastically for war is a misunderstanding, inconceivable to us, of the meaning of the German revolution."

"We leaders of the Nazi movement served almost without exception in the trenches. I would like to see the trench soldier who would prepare enthusiastically for a new war."

"We are training our youth primarily for a fight against the danger of communism. Our youth in the labor camps and storm troop formations are not being equipped with military knowledge which they might feel inspired some time to use."

MUNITIONS REPORTS
"As to the allegation the German Government in Sweden, Holland and elsewhere has acquired munitions factories, these views are ridiculous."

"Where are these factories? Neither in Sweden nor in Holland are the Nazis in charge of the government."

Chancellor Hitler emphatically stated that "no one among us is thinking of starting a war with Poland on account of the Corridor."

"We would all like and hope both nations will discuss and negotiate peacefully the questions affecting both. In that case, the future can decide whether a satisfactory solution cannot be found for both peoples."

POPULATION PROBLEM
When asked concerning his ideas for territorial expansion of Germany and whether colonies were aimed at, the Chancellor replied:

"Germany is too densely populated. It is in the interests of the world to deny the necessary possibility for existence to a great nation."

"The question of allocating the colonial regions, no matter where, will, however, never constitute a reason for war so far as we are concerned."

Concerning the winter programme, the Chancellor explained:

"We are facing a very severe winter. The measures undertaken to meet the situation include tax reduction, general restitution of confidence, removal of laws hampering business and industry, and especially public job creation."

Seattle, Oct. 19.—Cadborosaurus, the camel-headed sea serpent, has started a search that ranged to-day from the Strait of Juan de Fuca to the Prince Edward Archipelago, as sea captains and yachtsmen kept a sharp lookout for any sign of the monster as they plied their regular routes.

Puget Sounders were showing an active interest in "Caddy" and "waves" sought data from scientific sources regarding strange sea life in an effort to definitely place "Caddy."

Cadborosaurus, or one of his relatives who also has had a domicile in Victoria waters, may be nursing a high-powered bullet from a 30-30 rifle in its neck, according to a story related by R. M. Elliott of Port Renfrew, who tells of seeing the serpent and firing at it, while it was swimming down the West Coast.

FRANCE FACES CABINET TEST

Sudden Opposition in Parliament on Budget Question
Threatens Overthrow

Associated Press
Paris, Oct. 19.—The cabinet to-day suddenly confronted serious opposition in the Chamber of Deputies over balancing the budget, and officials frankly said there was danger of an overthrow.

The government was notified by the finance committee of the Chamber it was impossible to push through budget measures within the week fixed by Premier Edouard Daladier in a speech before Parliament this week.

Mr. Daladier has said the budget must be balanced completely or the country must find a new government. Commission debates indicated dissatisfaction with a number of measures.

Government functionaries have begun marshalling their strength to resist salary and pension reductions suggested by the Premier. The Socialists are supporting them.

The attitude of Chancellor of Germany was considered as strengthening the cabinet, but the political squabbling was viewed as overshadowing the international crisis.

FOR B.C.'S BEST INTERESTS

A year ago Liberals met at the largest convention ever held by any party. Six hundred delegates from all parts of the province met there at their own expense, prompted by a sincere desire to formulate a course for the best interests of the province. The Liberal Party emerged from that convention more than ever entitled to be known as the people's party. It was the duty of the Liberal party to keep abreast of the times and it had lived up to its reputation. Some there who thought it might be a bit ahead of the times.

There had been some criticism of party government, but after all what did party government mean? It meant team work, and at no time was there a greater need for team work, the speaker said.

UNITED PARTY

"The Liberal Party," said Mr. McDonald, "is today the only united party pulling together as a team with the interests of the province at heart and standing solidly behind its leader. It offers sound, sane, progressive government and its leader is held in respect and his sincerity was unquestioned."

"What British Columbia needs is a strong man, a man of decision, a man who can say 'no' at the right time, the speaker said.

nature's first defence against fatigue, disease and premature death. My diet is confined chiefly to raw vegetables, fruit and milk. I take plenty of exercise. Every morning I take an ice-cold bath and dry my body before an open window, massaging and pounding the skin with my hands. The skin is a wonderful mechanism and should be built up as a vital organ."

Dr. Jackson has never had a cold for the last twenty-five years. He recalled to-day that he caught his last cold in London in 1913 when he was attending the International Medical Congress.

"I found I could do it on December 23, eight years ago, and I have been demonstrating that I can easily do it since," he said.

His friend arrived in his open roadster, muffled in a coonskin coat, with the thermometer registering thirty-three degrees below zero. Dr. Jackson took him up and without overcoat entered the car and drove with his friend to his home on Mount Royal, had breakfast as his guest, and returned home without noticing the cold.

NORMAL AGE 130 YEARS
 Dr. Jackson believes the normal age of man is 130 years, and he does not see why providing a natural life is lived, that age should not be reached. He bases his argument on the sixth chapter of Genesis, third verse.

When he was fifty years of age, Dr. Jackson suffered from heart trouble, and was given but four months to live by Sir William Osler. He has disproved that, and he says he is now in the best of health.

Thirty-five years ago Dr. Jackson was a resident of Victoria.

"I always look upon Victoria as my home town and I am looking forward to the time when I shall return to spend the last twenty-five or thirty years of my life here," he said as he hurried off to meet a group of people awaiting him.

Dr. Jackson was greeted by a large number of citizens at the Empress Hotel, where he is staying while in the city.

This afternoon he is addressing a meeting at the Hudson's Bay Company, and will speak on diet this evening at the City Temple.

LYNCHING WILL BRING ROUND-UP

DOORS BROKEN DOWN
 The mob of more than 1,000 men, women and youths, stopped temporarily by a tear gas attack from the state police, stormed the jail, battered down the heavy steel doors and after ripping most of the clothes from his body and fastening a rope around his neck, dragged the negro out into the street.

Eight defenders of the jail fell during the attack, but by flying stones and bricks.

The negro was pulled behind an automobile through the audience area of the town to an oak tree just outside the town.

The march to the final scene was wild in the extreme. Mob members seemed crazed, continually leaping on the negro, even after he had fallen to the ground and was unable to rise.

After the hanging the rope was cut into small pieces and distributed among members of the mob as souvenirs.

PROTESTS NOT HEED
 Armwood was captured Monday night near Pocomo City as the negro who earlier in the day had seized Mrs. Mary Denton, eighty-one-year-old wife of a Somerset farmer, as she was walking home after spending the night with her daughter.

State police rushed the negro to Baltimore for safekeeping. A mob of negroes gathered in the city to collect in eastern shore communities. Early yesterday, over protests of his state police, he was returned to Princess Anne in preparation for conveying of the grand jury next week.

State police said Armwood had admitted the attack on the woman.

Move For New U.S. Tariff On Shingles From This Country
 Associated Press
 Washington, Oct. 19.—West Coast shingle producers are again reported as in an attempt to have a tariff put on imports from Canada, but there seems little likelihood of their efforts meeting success.

The market for shingles in the United States is mostly with farmers and it has been adversely affected by introduction of other roofing materials.

However, the United States farmer seems naturally to have a use for the 100 per cent soft-edge grade shingle produced in British Columbia. More than 80 per cent of British Columbia production is high grade, whereas production in the United States is medium or low grade.

Previous efforts of United States interests to obtain a tariff have been nullified by need for Canadian shingles of high quality.

ONTARIO'S CRIME TOTALS SHRINK

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 19.—Convictions for crime in Ontario during the first eight months of 1933 constitute the lowest figure since pre-war days, having decreased by 40 per cent since the peak year of 1929. The figures were announced by Hon. George H. Chalmers, Provincial Secretary, who addressed an audience here.

Resources To Back Wages For All Plan

Mr. Pattullo, after first declaring that pending the working out of the programme no one in British Columbia would suffer for lack of food, clothing and shelter, said the national credit would be used to establish the work and wages policy. In spite of what Prime Minister Bennett had said to the contrary, he dared not face Parliament with a big programme of public works. Public opinion would not stand for it.

The Dominion Government had come to the assistance of the C.P.A. in their financing in various ways during the last year. The national credit of the country was used to the extent of a couple of billions during the Great War, said Mr. Pattullo. If there were another it would be done again.

"National wealth, which is the accumulation of our national labor, in itself is not enough, but you can use your national credit," Mr. Pattullo went on. In the case of British Columbia this would be backed by the natural resources of the province, he said.

"It is the duty of the Dominion and the provinces to get together and allocate the national resources to take up this unemployment."

PURCHASING POWER
 "How are you going to do that? I am opposed to inflation, as we don't want to destroy the wealth of the people. But there is another way. When this province issues interest-bearing bonds, it makes provision for sinking funds to pay them off. Now, why cannot you get a sinking fund to pay off non-interest-bearing bonds and put purchasing power in the hands of the people? We must have a redistribution of purchasing power."

Mr. Pattullo recalled how the largest party convention ever held in British Columbia had drafted the Liberal platform. Some of the resolutions were described how resolutions were presented and considered.

B.C.'S WELFARE
 For two days delegates from all parts of British Columbia discussed with religious and moral fervor questions dealing with the future welfare of British Columbia. There was no discussion of the Toimie government and only one resolution dealing with it and that a condemnatory resolution as a matter of record.

Mr. Pattullo touched briefly on party government to offer a defence of it.

"You cannot get rid of party government if you would have responsible government," he said. The alternative was dictatorship enforced with the power of force. He asked the question why he could not accept Premier Toimie's invitation to join a coalition government which could only perpetuate the errors of the present administration, stir up antagonism and bring about warfare between the "ins" and "outs."

"The rose still retains the properties of a rose if you call it a skunk cabbage, and a skunk cabbage still retains its properties if you call it a rose," commented the speaker.

IMPERISHABLE RECORD
 "It might be possible that some good might come out of the depression," Mr. Pattullo continued, and in this connection remarked that everybody prospered in the years before the depression. Some of the speakers of the Liberal party could look back with pride on its imperishable record of social legislation on behalf of the people.

Mr. Pattullo explained the Liberal plan for freedom of members in voting in the Legislature. He also explained the meaning of a caucus. For twelve years the Liberal government had been in power. There was nothing nefarious about them. They were conferences where free discussions took place on problems to be faced. The Liberal party was not a limited party. It was a strong and vibrant force for the whole of the people.

Turning to taxation Mr. Pattullo classed fishing licenses, the meat tax and 1 per cent tax as nuisance taxes and in this connection he noted figures quoted by John Hart had been disputed.

TRIBUTE TO MR. HART
 "Mr. Hart was absolutely accurate," Mr. Hart is correct. John Hart is the very best Finance Minister this province ever had," Mr. Pattullo said.

Much of the heavy taxation the province suffered from 1924 was due to the extravagance of the Toimie administration. Mr. Pattullo said everybody was spending, and nobody at that time could foresee what conditions would be met by the province in 1929 he and George S. Pearson, the Liberal member for Nanaimo, warned the government of the morass of debt to which they were headed and to the problem of unemployment that loomed. Had not those prophecies come true.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION
 The independents in the fight were briefly touched upon by Mr. Pattullo. Hon. J. W. Jones was pictured as a member of the Toimie Government Government running against himself as an independent. Mr. Jones had said that there were things for the good of the province which could not be done by party government because parties date not to them. He, Mr. Pattullo, had asked frequently what those things were, but had received no answer. From Mr. Jones's colleagues he had received a threat against social legislation which the Liberals had fought for years to get on the statute books, including mothers' pensions and old age pensions.

"As far as the Liberal party is concerned that legislation will never be taken off," said the Liberal leader with emphasis.

The Liberals had forty-seven candidates in the field, and he had been given a free pass as a state leader to the voters whom he chose to form a government without any regard to partisanship. Against that he had independent supporters who could not control the actions of the government which they were elected with and two other varieties of independents.

Regarding the C.C.F. he was pleased to admit their motives were honest but their ultimate objective was the establishment of a socialistic state. He had no objections to their advocacy of a socialistic state provided they did not advocate means subversive of the constitution.

INDIVIDUALISTIC
 "But I want to know can I say of that socialistic state what they say of the capitalist state. Ninety per cent of the people do not want a socialistic state. They would rather live under a capitalist state which you can control, than a socialistic state where you are controlled by a few men."

Mr. Pattullo pointed to the case of children to show the instinct to possess something was natural. If a man possesses $100 over and above his debts that represented accumulated labor. He was a $100 capitalist. When a man becomes an arrogant capitalist it was time for the government to step in. Money must be used for the benefit of the people. Facts to face were that men were not born equal. They were not born with equal opportunities or with equal earning capacity. Russia had been forced to realize that.

FOR THE PEOPLE
 "The Liberal Party is out for the people," said Mr. Pattullo. "A few are not going to live in luxury while the remainder suffer. British Columbia had done more for the people along the line of C.C.F. advocated than any other province in Canada. Yet the C.C.F. makes this its battleground."

Mr. Pattullo deplored any attempt to lower the standard of education and

THE ONLY PRACTICAL PLATFORM

The policies which Mr. Pattullo and his followers will put into operation if elected to office on November 2 should appeal to all liberally-minded people. They are warmly advocated by the four Victoria candidates—Mr. Clearhue, Mr. Hart, Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Kinsman. These gentlemen are flying the banner of the only party with a definite policy and a leader of experience who knows exactly where he is going. They stand for stable and orderly government.

One of the important planks of his platform which Mr. Pattullo explained at the Royal Victoria Theatre the other evening was the proposal to establish an economic council composed of representatives of the various avenues of endeavor, such as health, education, agriculture, labor, and the industries. Such a council would be appointed by the government on the recommendation of the interests involved, and it would act in an advisory capacity to the government. It would, indeed, examine every aspect of the public's business from the most disinterested standpoint in order that the cabinet and the Legislature might have the full benefit of expert and impartial advice. This would insure the best interests of the province being served.

State health insurance has in Mr. Pattullo and his followers enthusiastic advocates. They take the stand—and quite properly—that not only is the health of the community of the first importance both from the economic as well as from the humanitarian point of view, and that every citizen of modest means has the right to feel that if sickness intervenes there shall be adequate treatment and no economic loss to himself or herself. Although national unemployment insurance would have to be operated on a national scale, the Pattullo party is on record in favor of this form of insurance on a contributory basis.

Municipal financing, as Mr. Pattullo points out, is of the gravest concern, not only to the municipalities but also to every taxpayer. Municipal taxation is largely confined to the taxation of real property and there is not a municipality in British Columbia which is not imposing the fullest possible load in order to try to remain in a solvent condition. Neither residential nor business property can stand any more. In the last year or so sources of revenue in which the province and the municipalities used to share have either been diverted altogether into provincial channels or reduced to comparatively negligible grants to the municipalities. The policy to which Mr. Pattullo has pledged himself is an equitable adjustment between the province and the municipalities so that the latter may be put on a sounder financial basis.

A government led by Mr. Pattullo would establish a Highway Board and insure continuity of road construction and maintenance policy. Up till now each change of administration, which means each change of Minister of Public Works, has invariably meant a change in policy, changes that are sometimes costly and inefficient from the point of view of road service. A Highway Board could be thoroughly representative without being costly; it would at least put an end to the importunities of sectional interests.

The foregoing are some of the planks in the platform upon which Mr. Pattullo and his party stand. As we already have said, they should appeal to all liberally-minded voters, for they are practical, economically sound, and, what is more, they have been adopted by a party with a resolute leader whose pledge is to serve the best interests of the province—a pledge backed with many years of ministerial experience. If the people of this city, therefore, want to serve their own interests as well as those of the province as a whole, they will elect the four gentlemen to whom we have referred above. The alternative to a Pattullo majority is chaos in the government of British Columbia.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

Dr. H. W. Hatfield, medical director of the Vancouver Public Health Institute for Chest Diseases, told a gathering of representatives of service clubs, welfare organizations, and the city council yesterday that tuberculosis causes six times as many deaths as all other contagious diseases put together, and creates more suffering and economic loss than any other disease. He regards the disease as a provincial responsibility which should be handled by a separate board qualified to deal with all the ramifications of work entailed in its treatment.

The complete change of method in dealing with the problem which Dr. Hatfield proposes would, in his opinion, not only soon cut the annual death rate in half but would also materially reduce the cost of treatment, while it would give TB sufferers who recovered a new start in society. Under his proposal several units for TB patients would be established, including a farm and adjacent colony. One unit would be used for diagnosing cases. After several months, when cases had been fully analyzed, the more serious ones would be segregated, while others would be placed in a 200-bed institution, around which a number of cottages would be erected. These patients would be given light work in order to help towards the cost of their keep, and so on. A vocational workshop also would be included in the scheme. Dr. Hatfield was referring, of course, to Vancouver, where he says tuberculosis "is a problem of tremendous magnitude."

Some years ago a scheme of this kind was advocated in the form of an extension of the work now being carried on at the provincial institution at Tranquille, an institution originally intended for sufferers from TB in its incipient form, but nothing came of it. Much work of a preventive nature has been done in British Columbia under the auspices of the Provincial Board of Health. The fact remains, however, that the annual death toll is approximately 650, while between 4,000 and 5,000 are suffering from the malady, many of whom are unable to get institutional treatment of the proper kind because insufficient facilities exist. And the tragic part of it is that hundreds of sufferers get into a serious condition because they have to remain at work to earn their living until compelled to give up.

There is hope for such sufferers as long as they can obtain adequate care and treatment. But when the progress of the malady has been arrested it is little use for the patient to go back to the work and surroundings in which the disease was contracted. In most of such cases another breakdown sooner or later occurs. The plan Dr. Hatfield advocates for Vancouver could be extended to cover other districts of the province. The loss of 650 lives a year from tuberculosis is too costly a toll.

AS YOU WERE

Such newspapers as The Calgary Herald and The Winnipeg Tribune, both supporters of the present government at Ottawa, voiced the hope a week or so ago that on his western tour Premier Bennett would be able to tell the people of Canada, and particularly the people of the prairie provinces, what plans he had in mind for the alleviation of the suffering the unemployed will be called upon to bear in the coming winter months. The Prime Minister has delivered more than a dozen speeches and we have been unable so far to discover what he had to say about the future that would be of much cheer to the idle worker and his dependents.

In practically all of his speeches Mr. Bennett devoted a considerable amount of time to a vigorous defence of his government's tariff policy, and with statements to the effect that if the tariff preferences contained in the Dunning budget were to be put into operation in Canada, fifty per cent of the Dominion's industries would be ruined in fifteen months. How he arrived at his estimate of the precise date of their ruin is immaterial; but it will be recalled that when the Laurier government introduced the first British preference in 1897, Sir Charles Tupper made a similar prophecy. The result, however, was the trebling of Canadian business with Great Britain.

At Calgary last night, the Prime Minister said that Canada's tariff policy had served the purpose of protecting Canadian home markets and Canadian industry, and that the only trade that had been restricted in Canada was the trade of foreign countries. Our trade with empire countries for the twelve months ending last July was $361,400,000, or an increase over the preceding twelve months of $26,100,000. Our trade with foreign countries for the twelve months ending last July was worth $503,100,000, and for the corresponding period a year ago it was worth $692,300,000, or a decrease of $189,200,000.

The Times does not pretend to understand what economic comfort there is in a drop of $189,200,000 in foreign trade when there is only an increase of $26,100,000 in empire trade to set against it. Look at the figures as one may, the fact remains that the net decrease in Canada's external business is $163,100,000. But, then, protectionist reasoning is difficult to follow at the best of times.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

REWARDING A PATRIOT
The Saturday Review

During the war supplies of nitrates were absolutely essential, since they are the basis of all modern explosives. We employed a fleet of ships to bring our supplies from Chili, but Germany was unable to get much from this source. Happily for her, two methods of obtaining nitrates from the air had been developed a few years before the outbreak of hostilities; the Birkeland-Eyde process and the Haber process. Unhappily for him, Professor Haber, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, is a Jew. Consequently, he has now been forced to resign. It is a curious commentary on the mentality of the present rulers of Germany that one of the men who, by their scientific labor and skill, prevented the complete collapse of Germany, within a few months of the declaration of war, is thus rewarded by a nationalistic and militaristic government. Those whom the gods would destroy...

DICTATORS
Truth

It has been firmly held for many a day that Man into Master is the surest formula for producing a competent and determined tyrant. The worker who has risen from the ranks by his own force of character makes the hardest master of those who serve under him. Perhaps that particular object-lesson from the industrial arena is in course of being repeated on the wider stage of European politics. Say, if you will, that the older oligarchies displayed here and there a certain weariness and corruption, but is it not true that no system bears more heavily on democracy than those dictatorships which, rising from below, have suddenly displaced the oligarchies? Hitler and Mussolini and the Soviet administrators are all "of the people"; do any of them show the slightest real regard for the liberty of the class from which they sprang? The only liberty which the people enjoy is that of thinking like their new masters, a form of freedom which has never been withheld by any tyrant in the history of man.

WE HAVE OURSELVES TO BLAME
The Regina Leader-Post

The people of Canada are partly responsible for the fate that has overtaken their wheat growers. The people of the west must accept part of this responsibility. They accepted in Canada fiscal policies predicated on the assumption that Canada could go on selling wheat to the world without buying from the world in return. We erected barriers to keep the world from selling to us, with the result that the world decided that it would get along without buying from us, especially without buying the thing we were most eager to sell, and that it was most necessary for us to sell if we wished to provide a livelihood for the Canadian people. The outcome of it all has been that we have lost a large part of our world wheat market, and, as to-day faced with the necessity of selling our people to cease to produce. Canadians will have to retrace their steps. They will have to swing from wrong fundamental policies to right fundamental policies. Will they have the courage to do it?

Loose Ends

Well, I'm off again into the High North—after a grisly day in Vancouver—a fellow in Britain foolishly says a wise thing—make good in the mining market—and the valley is spread under the pall of autumn.

By H. B. W.

GRIM DAY

ANOTHER GRIM day in Vancouver. It's raining over here but, says the taxi driver, you ought to see how it rains in Victoria. And the fog over in Victoria is fierce compared with Vancouver. We're just getting nicely into the depression now, says the hard-boiled newspaper reporter and I'm going to get me a nice cabin somewhere up in the Cariboo. The C.C.P. isn't a real red party, says the seasoned politician, just pink parlor socialism filled up with a lot of nice fellows who don't know what socialism really means. A young white Russian, speaking to the intellectuals of the Canadian Club, says Canada offers plenty of opportunity to immigrants who want to work. "Boy, can you let me have a dime for a cup of coffee?" says the dirty-looking man on Pender Street. "I ain't et since yesterday morning," and the metropolitan editor asks, "Say, haven't you had enough freaks and enough publicity in Victoria lately with that government of yours without inventing a sea serpent? Why have you got to hog everything?" while I am in a newspaper office a fellow strides in angrily to announce that by mistake his name has been included on the Vancouver East ballot with the Talmie Unionists, and he is retiring from the field because under such a label no man can expect to get elected. Probably he could invalidate the Vancouver East election, but why bother to go to the trouble? "Did you hear?" asks the party shaver, "just like Cassidy in Victoria has dug up the election act and finds you can't run as anything but a Conservative, a Liberal or an Independent, and that the whole election is illegal in Victoria and Vancouver because the ballots are full of C.C.P.'s and what-not?" No, I hadn't heard it, but it sounds likely. Anything is likely about this election and everything is unlikely. And so out to the C.N.R. station to start for the north. With an entire Pullman car to myself. So that nobody worries about the clatter of this typewriter. And we go through the grimy back yard of Vancouver, where the ruined foghat is springing up again. A surging, older and gallant little burst of scarlet vine maple, which some day will surge over the remains of the whole city. When we are forgotten. And not a bad idea either.

GERMANS
A BRITISH RADIO broadcaster has got himself nearly mobbed by telling radio listeners that Germany has a strong case and has been badly treated by the other powers. He is quite right, but being right never helped a man in a matter of this sort. Germany's reaction to the infamous Versailles Treaty is the most natural thing in the world, the reaction of any people with that quality which is now known as guts in the most polite society. To start with, the Peace Conference imposed impossible conditions and asked a ridiculous indemnity; then the United States loaned Germany the money to pay it and to buy a large part of America's exports, and when these loans stopped the whole silly business collapsed into the world depression. Then the nations refused to allow any German goods to cross their boundaries and created an impossible economic situation throughout central Europe, which couldn't help preparing the way for an explosion, just as happens when you try to compress a body of inflammable gas too far. Finally the nations promised to disarm to the level of Germany and proceeded to arm more than ever. Of course, Germany is mad, utterly and stark crazy, and must be stopped. But how could you expect anything else? A new generation has grown up in Germany since 1918 and harbors the curious notion that it has a right to live. If we had assured it of that right fifteen years ago we wouldn't have had so much trouble on our hands to-day. There is no defence for Germany's policy. And little for ours.

DOING WELL

I THINK IT should be recorded, as a matter of unusual news, that I am doing very well in the mining market. I have been a great success in Golden Calif; not that I have made any money, of course, but the stock is still worth a quarter of what I paid for it, and I think that is rather remarkable after a whole season's financing. Besides, look how much I have learned about human nature through Golden Calif. All my friends got me into Golden Calif. They said it was sure to go to $8 before the snow flew. They said it was the kind of stock one should buy for a long hold and wait for it to reach $5, and not sell it just because the market fluctuated. I agreed with them. I held Golden Calif, and I am still holding it. The other day I rang up all the fellows who bought Golden Calif with me. I found that everyone had sold the moment it reached $1.15. They couldn't understand why I hadn't done so, too. They jeered at me, at me who alone had kept the faith. Well, if I am the last man among them, I shall stick to Golden Calif and go down in honor. And I learn to follow the system of a colleague of mine who has made a small fortune by selling every time the brokers tell him to hang on and buying whenever they tell him to sell. He says the system is unbeatable and, judging by my experience with Golden Calif, he ought to be right.

AUTUMN

WE'VE HAD AN inferiority complex in this country too long in regard to our autumn. Everybody talks about the glory of autumn in Ontario and New England, where they are glorious indeed, but no one pays any attention to ours. For an hour between the last paragraph and this one I have been looking out on an autumn which someone ought to celebrate. Personally, in this swaying train and with a cranky portable typewriter, I feel unequal to the job. It requires a Keats or a Shelley and somehow I don't feel like either of them to-day. But look at the great splashes of yellow maple against the dark of the evergreen forest; at the infinite shades of green from the pale cedar to the dark spruce. And if you want scarlet, there are the vine maples dripping with red, the dogwood's deep crimson and the gorgeous red fruit of elderberry. But how gloomy autumn is in our coast woods! A melancholy fellow, this, and drear, with a clammy touch and a grey coat of mist. And how slowly a train moves through the forest, through the green square fields of the Fraser Valley, where discontented cows stand in the rain and scowl at us! Last week I drove through here at sixty miles an hour and driving like that you can keep yourself awake, but a train is a terribly slow thing and very dull. It is raining out there and cold and misty

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THE SILENCE
That flows beneath all sound
And swallows every noise at last
Within its tide profound.
Bright floods of silence rising
Within the waiting breast
Sweep all its strife and clamor out
And set the soul at rest.
The silence, outward flowing,
Bears grief and care along
And leaves peace lingering in its wake.
More sweet than any song.
O waves of silence enter:
O stillness, lap me round;
Come, silence deep and mighty stream,
That flows beneath all sound!

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

OCTOBER 19, 1908

(From The Times Files)

At noon to-day Hon. William Templeman, Minister of Inland Revenue, and G. H. Barnard were duly nominated candidates for the House of Commons at the forthcoming election.

W. G. Pearce, superintendent of the adult department of the International Sunday School Association, with headquarters at Chicago, who spoke at the Metropolitan and the Centennial Methodist and First Presbyterian churches yesterday, left to-day for Vancouver where he will go to attend the Sunday school convention of western British Columbia at New Westminster, which convenes to-morrow morning.

Lady Smith soccer team on Saturday scored their second win in the Pacific Coast League matches this season against Victoria when they defeated at Lady Smith by five goals to two in a game which, as indicated by the score, was theirs all through.

The German steamer, Tordenskjold under charter by R. Dunsmuir & Co., came into the outer wharf this morning and unloaded sixteen mules, the only freight she carried from San Francisco. The mules are as usual being held in quarantine for three days previous to being examined by the veterinary surgeon. Then they will be taken to the mines at Comox.

BETROTHED TO LOCAL DOCTOR

MISS ADENE PATRICIA FULLERTON

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Fullerton of Vancouver recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Adene Patricia, to Dr. John M. Sturdy of Victoria, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Sturdy of Vancouver. The wedding will take place at Ryerson United Church, Vancouver, November 8.

Japanese Described As Masters of Miniature

Mrs. T. H. Johns Gives Fascinating Description of Poetry, Drama, Music

Musical Arts Audience Enjoy Novel Programme of Japanese Numbers

The Japanese have been aptly described as "masters of miniature," their gift of expressing the maximum of suggestion with the minimum of statement being reflected in their poetry, drama and art. Mrs. T. H. Johns told a large gathering of the Victoria Musical Art Society at the Shrine auditorium yesterday afternoon. Her subject was "Some Glimpses of the Music and Drama of Japan," in which the speaker vividly described some of the impressions she gained during her recent trip to the Orient, supplemented by a brief review of the history of this ancient civilization.

LOVELY SETTING
The occasion was the opening recital of the society's season, and no more fascinating introduction to the winter's programme could have been chosen. Mrs. Johns's delightful causerie was illustrated with examples of Japanese music, both vocal and instrumental, the Oriental atmosphere being heightened by the charming native costume of the young Japanese girl who played the samisen, and by the stage settings, which included two brilliant little Japanese maps and a miniature Japanese garden. Kindly loaned by Mr. H. Takata of the Japanese Tea Gardens.

As a background for her talk on music and the drama, Mrs. Johns briefly sketched the history of Japan, which she noted as the longest unbroken dynasty in the world, a dynasty which extended over 2,500 years. The first 1,000 years was shrouded in mystery, the first record dated back to about 700 B.C. The rule of the Shogunate and its influence on the music, drama and art of Japan was touched upon, the speaker noting that the closing of Japan to foreign influence during that time had resulted in a great stimulus to the development of native art.

EXCEL IN POETRY
In poetry the Japanese excelled, and here they best portrayed their mastery of miniature, the speaker reading several exquisite poems to show the beauty conveyed in the short space of thirty-one syllables. The women of Japan had been particularly successful as poets, their work revealing great delicacy and refinement. The national love for poetry could be traced back as far as the ninth century, when poetry contests were held in conjunction with the flower-viewing festivals which are still observed as national holidays to-day.

UNPARALLELED FOR ARTISTRY
Declaring that the stage of Japan cannot be surpassed for sheer artistry, Mrs. Johns traced the origin of its drama to the religious dances which had their root in Japanese mythology. With the Japanese, acting becomes almost an exact science, every movement constituting a ritual, every gesture of everyday life and the music, meaning as in the famous "No" drama. Many of these ritualistic movements had been handed down for centuries, so that while their meaning was clear to the native audience, it was somewhat bewildering to the uninitiated Occidental, said Mrs. Johns, who graphically described her impressions of several plays she had witnessed in the Orient.

MUSIC BACKWARD
Music was the most backward of the arts in Japan, Mrs. Johns said. One song still sung dated from 680 B.C. and was of the folk type. In Japanese music harmony was sacrificed to melody and the arrangement of the scale was a particularly interesting feature.

The samisen, which is the musical instrument of the common people, was first introduced from Manila in the sixteenth century. To-day percussion instruments predominate. From 1100 to 1868 Japanese music was developed along a purely national flavor, but the Emperor Meiji later encouraged foreign music, a taste which had been stimulated through the medium of the radio, gramophone and similar means. Within recent years the best music of European composers had found great favor with the Japanese, and symphony concerts in which the works of Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms and other names equally familiar had become the chief part of the musical life of the country.

FASCINATING RECORDS
The address was illustrated with a series of fascinating records brought back from Japan by Mrs. Johns, the interest for the audience being heightened by the reading of the English translations, arranged by Miss Nakata of Victoria. The records included three old folk songs and a rousing fisherman's song, sung by Yoshie Fullerton, and two charming songs by Yoshie Sekiya, both being leading artists of Japan. A Tokio Geisha dance record, which included the chorus of boys' voices, singing in a shrill falsetto, proved interesting as typical of this class of music.

Miss Marie North, who beautifully sang "Namida" (Kosak Yamada) in Japanese, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. John Gough, while Mrs. Alice Condo, a dainty little figure in kimono and obi, played a samisen solo. Tea was served under the convener-ship of Mrs. Harold Campbell, assisted by Mrs. Archie Wills, at the close of the programme, Mrs. W. G. Wilson, Mrs. W. B. McKinnon, Mrs. W. E. Staniland, Mrs. A. S. Christie, Mrs. F. T. Wickett and Miss Agnew, pouring tea, assisted by members of the society in serving the guests.

Katherine Hale Made Honorary Member of French Literary Society

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 18.—Katherine Hale (Mrs. John Garvin), distinguished Canadian authoress, has been honored by the Institut Historique et Heraldique de France, in being invited by its president, Marquis de Farenon, to permit her name to be enrolled among honorary members.

As a young girl, Katherine Hale, daughter of James Warnock of Galt, Ont., first attracted attention because of her literary criticisms. Later she took on duties of book critic on a Toronto newspaper, writing under the pen name of "Katherine Hale."

French Government Sends Donation to L'Alliance Francaise

Madame H. M. Archibald, president of L'Alliance Francaise, welcomed the membership yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. A. Stanier, 1545 Richmond Avenue. These meetings will be held in future on the second and fourth Monday of each month, and the next will be at 3 o'clock on Monday, October 30 at the home of Mrs. Stanier.

Upon a general vote it was decided to study and discuss the period of the Renaissance in France, particularly in its bearing upon art, literature and history. Mrs. Hamilton-Smith, secretary-treasurer, who was complimented upon her success in the duties of the office, announced the receipt of a second gift from the government of France of 800 francs, sent through the Consul-General, in recognition of the efforts of L'Alliance Francaise in making known the language and literature of France. This sum will materially aid in the annual bursary presented by the local branch of L'Alliance to the second-year student making high marks in French at Victoria College, and to be used in further study of French.

In considering the series of four lectures given annually, it was pointed out by the president that following the visit of the official lecturer of L'Alliance Francaise, who usually visits Victoria during the winter season, this community is fortunate in possessing some very distinguished local speakers who will insure for the membership and those interested in the French language, the usual course of four conferences to complete this year's programme. Members were reminded of the French books to be had from the library of France-Canada, at the Victoria Book and Stationery, also from the library of L'Alliance, and from the French library at Victoria College.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served tea.

Authors' Association—Howard Angus Kennedy, national secretary of the Canadian Authors' Association, is expected to visit Victoria next week in the course of his annual western tour. Details of his entertainment will be announced by the local branch later.

Mannequins Parade in Gowns Revealing Chinese and Edwardian Influence

East is east and west is west, but sometimes the trend do meet—when Dange Fashion effects the introduction. At the revue of fall fashions staged at Angus Campbell and Company Limited, Government Street, this morning and afternoon and again this evening at 8.15 o'clock, lovely gowns subtly indicated the Chinese influence as interpreted by Schiaparelli, the Paris Couturier, in contrast to the gowns whose nuances recall gay Edwardian days. In this amalgamation of 1900 and 1933, the arbiters of fashion have skillfully chosen the best features of the earlier period, without reviving the atrocities of the "full fronts" and plethora of trimmings.

Staged in the ready-to-wear department before a large and interested audience, the revue emphasized the gorgeous materials and the gay colors which are happily allied in the newest evening gowns for fall and winter wear. The Chinese influence is most marked, both in the colors, in which lacquer greens reminiscent of translucent jade and celestial blues are dominant notes, and in the little evening coats which have the style of the Mandarin in their quaint square cut.

The Mandarin coat influence was apparent in one ultra-smart French model evening gown of white crepe morocain, the skirt in which was superbly cut and moulded to the figure, with unusual décolletage drapings being worn beneath a hip-length coat of the same material, its elbow-length sleeves having an epaulet effect of dyed squirrel, while the up-standing collar, cut similarly to that worn by the Chinese, was caught at the throat with large dark brown velvet flowers.

A quaint hip-length coat of silver metallic added the final note of chic to a svelte gown of black tulle, the front of the slim-fitting bodice boasting three large metal buttons, while the cherry-colored sash added further piquancy to the general effect.

FATOU THE DESIGNER

Fatou's wizardry evolved the stunning dinner gown of cream-de-menthe velvet worn by Miss Helen Campbell. The upper part was of peppermint green crepe, patterned in tiny gold stars, the bodice with its high neckline being opened to the waistline at the back, but fastened at the neck with a touch of the deeper green velvet. The sleeves were puffed to the elbow. The line of the bodice continued to the long point both in the back and front of the skirt, the velvet being cleverly shirred and draped at the back to simulate a bustle effect, the slight satin adding to the air of sophistication.

A DEMURE FROCK

Almost startlingly demure in contrast to the ultra-sophistication of the previous gowns was the adorable frock which might have stepped from the pages of "Cranford." Of mulberry velvet and light-colored, the bodice was closed in front with large buttons from the neckline to the tiny basque at the waistline, and the puff sleeves were finished with lace at the elbows, while lace also fashioned the large collar.

GRECIAN INFLUENCE

The Grecian influence inspired the silver metallic evening gown created by Martini at Armand, Paris, and worn by Miss Helen Campbell. Its long and lovely classic lines were accentuated by the slender drapery which fell from the shoulders at the back and were knotted beneath the low décolletage to fall to the ground, while the double fillet which bound her hair was of the silver tissue. Over it she wore a regal evening gown of gold metallic, with a sumptuous collar of white fur.

For the debutante was a fascinating and girlish frock of cream net, covered all over with tiny mirrors, the high neck and tiny puff sleeves enhancing the demure effect. No two of the evening gowns shown were alike, except in the general trend towards the moulded lines, the banishment of the belt to the back, the very long skirts, many ending in a slight train, and the quaint sleeves and shoulder effects.

LACE POPULAR

Lace retains its popularity, and of duchesse point lace was a handsome evening gown in a shade of pigeon-breast grey, a purple velvet sash confining the waistline at the back and caught at the lowest point of the opening with a cluster of purple and rose flowers—a French touch of chic. Cherry velvet fashioned an evening gown whose novel sleeves, lined with silver metallic, were caught across the shoulders at the back, until released by the undoing of a button, to form a collar effect extending to the waistline.

The evening coats were particularly alluring, one of cerise velvet having novel bolster sleeves and cleverly cut collar.

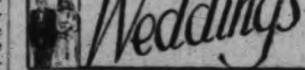

AFTERNOON FROCKS

For the afternoon bridge party the moulded lines are le dernier cri, with satins, crepe, faille and similar materials, allied with buttons, metallic touches and an occasional hint of fur. Sleeves are intriguing, waistlines are creeping up and skirts creeping down along the floor.

One very smart dress for street wear was of brown wool, after a model by Bruyere. This revealed the new neckline and a jaunty scarf effect, and was worn with a chic hat of brown felt.

The Gollies group was notable for its natty tailored effects, one charming gown being of cherry wool, closely fitted and with narrow bands of bolting plaid intriguingly on the bodice. Quaint in its appeal was a walking frock of steel-grey tweed, with padded rouleaux over the top of the sleeves, the slim-fitting bodice lined with lacquer red silk run through large metal eyelets.

Coats for sports and afternoon wear included several very smart Del Monte, Hickey, Goldie and Deja models, all showing the latest influences in cut and trimming features.

WEDDINGS

NICOL—TOWARD

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday evening by the Rev. Daniel Walker, 1133 Rockland Avenue, when Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Toward of Chicago, was united in marriage to Mr. James Nicol of Bay City, Michigan, U.S.A.

The bride was charmingly gowned in dove grey georgette and d'Alencon lace with hat and accessories to match. Her corsage bouquet was of tallman roses. The bride and groom were unattended. Later the happy couple left in the midnight boat for the mainland where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride traveled in a dress of midnight blue georgette and Hudson seal to the air of match.

After the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol will return to the Mount Edward Apartments, for a short time, before leaving to make their home in Bay City, Michigan.

Among the many beautiful gifts received was a handsome silver flower basket, also a lovely cake basket from the operating staff of the B.C. Telephone Company, of which the bride was a popular member.

BIG WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Phyllis Petherbridge Becomes Bride of Francis George Hall

Evening Ceremony Followed by Reception at New Thought Hall

Christ Church Cathedral was filled yesterday evening when Very Rev. C. S. Quinton, Dean of Columbia, united in marriage Phyllis Petherbridge, only child of Mr. and Mrs. William Petherbridge, 725 Fort Street, and Mr. Francis George Hall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hall, 305 Beachwood Avenue.

A LOVELY BRIDE

Richard Eaton, assistant organist and personal friend of the bride, played the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" as the bride party entered the church. Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in her beautiful gown of white chiffon velvet made on form-fitting lines, the flared skirt extending into a train, the bodice having the new look of mutton sleeves. Her veil of French embroidered net was caught at the nape of the neck with a spray of orange blossoms which had been worn by her mother. Her shower bouquet was composed of Ophelia roses.

The four attendants included the maid of honor, Miss Margaret Rogers, cousin of the groom, in a smart gown of mauve silk voile with a sash tied in a bow at the back and finished with a crystal ornament, and a first bridesmaid of beige hand-made silk straw, trimmed with mauve fold satin. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and snapdragons tied with pink ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Miss Grace Squires in shell pink silk voile with a mauve sash and a large mauve corsage picture hat with a beige charm, her bouquet of pink carnations and snapdragons was tied with mauve and pink satin ribbon, and Miss Patricia Cliff, in blue georgette, with a yellow sash, and a green hat with beige brim, trimmed with yellow and green satin. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow carnations and pink snapdragons. Their frocks were all fashioned alike with close-fitting sleeveless bodices trimmed with tiny buttons, and long full skirts, with which they wore tiny matching jackets with puff sleeves. Their long, silk lace mittens and brocaded satin slippers also matched the frocks.

Little Yelda Willie was a dainty flower girl, dressed in a long early Victorian frock of peach point d'esprit over pale yellow satin, and a matching Juliet cap. She held a Victorian posy of mixed flowers. The best man was Mr. Alex. Auchincloss of Union Bay, and the ushers were Mr. Bruce McKinnon, Mr. Jack Norris and Mr. Alan Rogers.

LARGE RECEPTION

A large reception was held after the service in the New Thought Hall, where the floral decorations were carried out to match the bridesmaids' frocks, in yellow, green, peach and mauve, the artistic work of Mr. R. Rigby. The parents of the bride and groom welcomed the guests. Mrs. Petherbridge wearing a smart frock of hand-painted pink silk georgette with a short Hudson's seal jacket and a black plush hat, and Mrs. Hall a vintage red velvet dress and hat, a short black coat and fawn accessories. The bride and groom stood beneath a white trellised arch, entwined with pink and white convolvulus, set amid tall baskets of flowers, to receive the felicitations of their many friends.

Supper was served from long tables arranged down one side of the hall, trimmed with pink and mauve flowers, and the four-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's father, was set on a small table upon an Italian lace cloth. The cake was decorated with pink hand-made roses and white streamers from the surmounting posy.

Mr. Joseph Garner, an old family friend, acted as master of ceremonies, and during the evening, Mr. P. Glen-dinning and Miss Dolly Routledge sang several solos. Among the helpers

Mrs. Grute Shows Pottery Exhibit

Mrs. Margaret Grute, through whose artistry and perseverance for the past ten years a permanent interest in the making of local pottery has been established, held a delightful exhibition of her more recent work yesterday afternoon and evening in the Business and Professional Women's Club Room, Courtney and Government Streets. Michaelmas daisies, dahlias and autumn foliage were effectively used in the decoration of the club room, and the tables of pottery attracted the admiration of the many guests.

Tea was served during the afternoon and evening, when Mrs. Grute was assisted by Mrs. Sweeney, Miss Van Becker and Miss Beverly Vail. The exhibit will remain on view for a few days, when it will be transferred to the annual exhibition of the Island Arts and Crafts, which will open on Tuesday at Belmont House.

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY

(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

Marie sprang to her feet. "Why, I thought she was with you. Miss Burnham. Natsu told me Mr. Newton was here, and that Rita was with you."

"But Mr. Newton has been gone half an hour. Where's Natsu? Molly rushed into the hall. 'Natsu! Natsu! Have you seen Rita?'"

"The butler's yellow skin grew pale. 'She left the house, my lady, with her father. I supposed you knew.' 'Oh, my God! Get Mr. Flynn on the phone immediately. And call a taxi for me.'"

Molly was tearing at the fastenings on her hyacinth gown. Before the butler had red on the line, she had changed into street clothes. She snatched the telephone from Natsu's hands.

"Red, Bob's taken Rita away with him! Half an hour ago. No, I don't know where he's gone. No, I tell you! I don't know anything at all about it. I've just missed her. I thought she was with Maria. Oh, what shall I do? Yes, I am calm."

She hung up the receiver. "Mr. Flynn says I must be calm. Natsu," she told him. "Calm! She laughed hysterically. 'Don't, Miss Burnham!' cried Marie."

Red had promised to come immediately. Molly paced up and down the hall, wringing her hands. Sometimes she pressed her fingers to her lips, to stifle the screams that were in her own throat.

"Oh, God," she prayed, "don't let him keep Rita. Please don't let him keep her."

When the bell rang, she rushed past Natsu, to open the door herself. To her utter amazement, it was not Red—but Jack—whom she admitted.

"I've read Ashes of Desire," he announced surprisingly. "And, stepping in, he closed the door behind him."

"You've what?" she cried. "Read Ashes of Desire. Oh, please repeat it. Your book, I never read it before, Molly."

She stared at him. "I don't know what you're talking about," she told him foolishly. "Rita's gone. Jack, Bob's taken her away. What shall I do?"

"Rita!" he repeated. "I didn't come to talk about Rita."

Natsu and Marie had disappeared, and the two were alone. Simply, as though he had done it only yesterday, Jack put out his arm straightaway, like a child, Molly nestled in his circle.

"Dearest!" He held her closely, as though he could never let her go. "I don't understand," she murmured. "Did Red send you? Do you know about Rita?"

He shook his head. "No, darling. I went back to New York, when I learned you had left town. I didn't even want to see you, nor hear of you again. Red, Flynn had sent me Ashes of Desire. I never meant to read it. I meant to return it to him. But last night—oh, Molly, it was an awful thing. I poured, and the wind howled. I tried to get you out of my mind. I didn't want to think of you. I darn near went crazy, trying to forget you. Then I picked up your book, and I glanced through it."

"Tell me, dearest! Tell me you wrote it for me." "Of course I wrote it for you, Jack."

"And those fool reporters thought it was for Bob Newton!" He laughed shortly. "I don't understand sweet-heart. You weren't really engaged to Bob, were you?"

"Yes," she admitted. "I mean, no. That is... oh, Jack, he's taken Rita!" "I don't understand," she confessed. "It's awfully mixed up, isn't it? I love you, Jack."

"Oh, darling. I know you do. It's the most wonderful thing in the world. And, Molly, I never stopped loving you, sweetheart."

"But you wouldn't marry me!" she moaned. "I was just a darn fool," he declared. "Let's get married to-day."

"Oh dear!" she cried. "If only had Rita. I'd be the happiest girl in the world." "I'll get Rita for you," he promised. "I'll do anything in the world you want me to, Molly."

"But you can't get Rita," she wailed. "Because she belongs to Bob, and he won't let you have her, unless I marry him."

"So that's it! That's why you got yourself engaged to Bob?" "I wouldn't marry her," she said. "And I didn't want to marry anyone else, so it didn't make much difference."

He kissed her hair the way he used to. "You're cuckoo," he told her tenderly. "You may be a bright young woman on Broadway, but you're only a little nut after all."

"Come in my sitting room," she proposed. "Red will be here any minute. I'm afraid he'll think I'm fickle, if you don't stop kissing me. Last time I saw him, I was engaged to Bob. I saw dear, if I only knew about Rita! There are about a million things I want to ask you, Jack Wells."

"What sort of things?" he asked. "Oh, that dreadful Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton for one."

"Molly, you didn't believe that devil!" he regarded her sternly. "No," she said, "of course I didn't. But you've a lot of explaining to do just the same."

"Well, she was rich as old lady Croesus," he declared, "and I was a poor young man, trying to get along. Besides, I did some swell houses for her. I got paid pretty well for my time, of course."

"That's as it should be," she decreed. "You didn't ever kiss her, Jack?" "No! Whatever made you think of a thing like that?"

"Oh, I didn't really think so," she assured him. "I just wanted to be sure. I just wanted to be sure. I'd hate to have had you kiss her. It was—bad enough the way you held her hand the night she sacrificed."

WOMEN KNOW

Liberals Responsible for Women's Suffrage, H. Martin Tells Port Renfrew Voters

Port Renfrew, Oct. 19.—Two hundred people, composed chiefly of loggers, fishermen and farmers and their wives, attended an enthusiastic Liberal meeting here October 14, when Harry Martin spoke in the interests of C. E. Whitney Griffiths, B. Carlson acted as chairman.

Mr. Martin enumerated points of policy, economy and stability for which male voters are supporting the Liberal party and advanced special reasons why women voters should use their vote and influence for the Liberal candidates.

The Liberal party, the speaker said, had always stood for the rights of women and children. When the Liberal party adopted women's suffrage and pledged itself to extend the franchise to women if returned in the 1916 election, Mr. Bowser, who was Premier at that time, adopted the shirking way of holding a plebiscite on women's suffrage, said Mr. Martin.

The same vote which in September, 1916, put the Bowser party out of office and the Liberal party in, gave a large majority for women's suffrage. One thing, said Mr. Martin, was certain, the Liberal party had not broken down in the session of 1917, asserted the speaker, was the act enfranchising the women of the province. The Liberals also sponsored the Mothers' Pension Act, the Minimum Wage Law for women and girls, the Testators' Maintenance Act and the Old Age Pensions Act.

STANDS FOR WORKER "The Liberal party is a party that will help the worker and we will all have work and wages and a war on poverty," said Mr. Martin. There will be no more twenty cents a day or university at other point."

The Tolmie government made one and a half miles of road at Port Renfrew in five years. "Why not build the west coast road, something we surely need?" he asked.

"Vote Liberal and get the lead soles taken from your shoes, so you can get your head above water and enjoy good times once more," Mr. Martin urged.

Mr. Carlson, in thanking the speaker for his address, said that if the Liberal party were returned to power next month and Mr. Whitney Griffiths were elected to represent the Esquimalt riding, Port Renfrew would have a road to Victoria.

EARACHES ARE SEQUEL TO COLDS The annual crop of earaches follows the annual crop of colds, as night follows day. Ear infections and earaches are the most prevalent infant ailments.

My leaflet, "Home Care of Colds," will prove helpful to most mothers. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope with your request for it. To-morrow Temperaments and Temperatures Dictate Costume."

EGG STORAGE COURT TEST Calgary, Oct. 19 (Canadian Press).—A test case to determine if officials working under the Livestock Products Act have power to inspect documents relating to the length of time eggs have been kept in storage will be carried to the district court by Campbell and Griffin Limited, produce firm fined on a charge of obstructing these officials.

TRAIN KILLS MAN Medicine Hat, Alta., Oct. 19. (Canadian Press).—Frankie Jenkins, sixty-year-old farmer of the Bow Island district, died in hospital here yesterday evening from injuries received when his grain truck was struck by a passenger train Monday. A companion in the truck, Buster Casper, is recovering from injuries.

OPERA DIVA IN MARITAL RIFT

Money matters have come between Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, world-famous opera singer of a generation ago, and her young husband, Pietro Versati, with whom she is here shown. First Versati brought suit to prevent her from "squandering her money." Now the noted diva has countered this action by charging her mate with extortion.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SINGING WATCH

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

In the middle of the night, all through Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow sounded a banging, clinking noise.

"Oh, my goodness! What's that?" squeaked Nurse Jane Fussy Wuzzy sitting up in bed with the curl papers in her hair rustling like dried leaves in the wind.

"It was in Wiggily's room," said Mrs. Longears, who was sleeping with Baby Bunty that night as the little orphan rabbit had a very painful earache.

"Maybe Mr. Longears fell out of bed," said Nurse Jane, standing in the door of her room dressed in a bath robe that looked like a piece of tablecloth.

"Oh, it wasn't loud enough a noise for Wiggily," said his wife. "If he had fallen out of bed you would hear him shouting by this time."

"Please tell me a story," begged the little orphan rabbit. "Then I can go to sleep for my earache is all better."

So Mrs. Longears told the little orphan rabbit a story about a pussy cat who had two tails, one for Winter and one for summer.

In the morning Uncle Wiggily began thinking about how careless it was of him to knock his watch off his bedside table at the head of his bed.

"I should have something to keep my watch on the table so that, even if I tumble and twist in my sleep and juggle the table the watch will not fall off," he said.

Hopping through the fields, Uncle Wiggily, a little later that day, saw on a low branch tree a bird's nest. The eggs that had been laid in the nest had all been hatched out. Uncle Wiggily was sure, for there were no little birds nor big birds near.

"I'll take this old bird's nest home to put my watch in on my bedside table," said the bunny uncle. "The nest is hollow and deep and lined with soft hair. It will keep my watch safe."

"But what made the noise?" asked the maternal lady housekeeper. "It was my watch," answered Uncle Wiggily, thrusting his head and also his pink, twinkling nose out of his partly opened bed room door.

"Your watch?" exclaimed his wife. "Yes," said the rabbit gentleman. "Each night, when I go to bed, I place my watch on a table at my head. Then, if I awaken and want to know what is the time I don't have to get up to see."

"But how can you see your watch to tell time in the dark?" asked Nurse Jane. "Oh, I have a little flashlight on the table at my head," said the bunny uncle.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed the housekeeper. "My watch is singing in the night! What does this mean?"

And if the horse chestnut doesn't run away with the dog biscuit I'll tell you what happened next week. It will be about Uncle Wiggily and the late bird.

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1933 Mingled good and evil are seen in the stars. Wiggily went to bed. But, all of a sudden, in the night, he was awakened by singing. It was right at his ear.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed the housekeeper. "My watch is singing in the night! What does this mean?"

And if the horse chestnut doesn't run away with the dog biscuit I'll tell you what happened next week. It will be about Uncle Wiggily and the late bird.

CHILDREN in normal health may be mischievous but they don't whine or sulk. When they do, punishing doesn't do good. Nine cases out of ten it is a lack of Vitamins. SCOTT'S EMULSION

RICH IN VITAMINS

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

To lure the lagging appetite of the sick child back to the border-land of health is very often a difficult problem for the worried mother. Eggs, milk, gruels, broths and fruit juices, cereals, and custards sound fairly good, but try serving them over a period of days and see how monotonous they become.

As all child loves pretty dishes and food attractively served. If, in addition to this, some little surprise which appeals to his imagination as added, it will divert his mind and he will not only eat the food with more relish, but will look forward to its coming.

EGG IN A CABIN The familiar poached egg ceases to be just the regular egg when served in a little log-cabin made from sticks of toast. Put the egg, after poaching on a hot plate, then pile toast sticks, log-cabin fashion, in a square around the egg. The toast will disappear like magic with the egg.

The egg in a nest is another way to serve eggs that is sure to appeal. To make this, toast a piece of bread cut a little thicker for ordinary toast. From its centre cut a good-sized square, leaving only a thin layer on the bottom. Separate the white from the yolk of an egg. Beat the white until stiff and put it into the hollow square which has been cut out of the toast. Slip the unbroken yolk deep into the white of the egg. Put into the oven until the white of the egg is well browned and the whole is hot throughout. If there is no objection to a small amount of salt in the diet, the egg will be more palatable, if lightly-seasoned with salt before putting into the oven.

SURPRISE IN STORE Almost anything will taste good to a small person if he knows there is a surprise at the bottom of the dish. Any small, attractive trifle which can be sterilized will be enjoyed if dropped into a bowl before the cereal is put in. A big red or green marble, a whistle, for a little girl a doll, one of the cunning brass or china animals so popular just now, a coin—anything that is small will do. Put the article to be used into a pan of cold water and bring to the boiling point. Then boil hard for ten minutes and let stand in this water until ready to drop into the dish for serving.

Serve milk and fruit juices with sippers. When one is on a liquid diet and must drink something every two hours, it's a relief to do it in a different way once in a while. Gruels and broths will usually be served with a spoon, but children love to drink through a straw, so keep them on hand.

SET RECORD FOR REGULAR SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

record for regularity and punctuality at Victoria schools has been established by the four children of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Coton, 1509 Lyall Street, Esquimalt. During their schooling, the four children have never missed a day. Their attendance totals thirty-two years. Eileen, the eldest, received eight honor rolls for attendance from Monterey School and completed three years at Victoria High without missing a day for a total of eleven years. The second daughter, Patricia, was awarded eight honor rolls at Monterey School and attended first year in high school without a break. Through indisposition during the last week of her second year at high school her record was broken. Marjorie, the youngest of the girls, was recently presented with a special attendance prize at Lamson Street School for perfect attendance during eight years at day school. The son, David, who is ten years old, has now four honor rolls which he has received during the four years that he has been at school. This is an outstanding mark of attendance for a single family and is a tribute to both the children and their parents.

JUST AVOID
NEW ELECTION

General Only Party Equipped
With Four Requisites of Office, Claims Whittaker

Unity, leadership, organization and above all an affirmed policy are necessary requisites of a government, asserted Norman W. Whittaker, Liberal candidate contesting the Saanich riding, addressing a large meeting in the Empress Hall at Keating yesterday evening.

It was essential in the best interests of the province that the Liberal party returned to power for it was the only party to have these four requisites, declared the speaker. At all times, he said, another election within months must be avoided.

HAVE DECISION

The decision which will be made on November 2 will be the most important decision in the history of British Columbia, said Mr. Whittaker. "If you are a Tolmie-Unionist, you are giving approval to the regime of the five years; if you vote Independent, you are not sure of the policy; if you vote Liberal, you will be voting for Socialism. The Liberal platform offers you a happy medium of a sane and level regime."

The Socialistic idea, he said, was a useful thing and should be held as a thing to attain, but until human nature changed it would be impossible to achieve that state. The C.C.F. policy made its members possible to a committee of twelve not to the people, which could only be construed as Russian policy, the speaker stated. The Dominion government would be broached for a loan in order to get a liberal plank of "work and wages" tried, said Mr. Whittaker. More drastic measures could be introduced if this failed, he intimated.

LIEVE BURDEN

The Liberals proposed to tax those who could afford taxes and would relieve the burden carried by the working classes. Unnecessary taxes would be eliminated.

Mr. Whittaker suggested that motor taxes be reduced to a nominal figure. C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, who spoke in support of Mr. Whittaker's candidature, pointed out that in the past the Liberal party had shown it was willing to deal directly with organized movements. Since the Tolmie Government took over office, he said, the farmers' movements had been actually throttled until they are no more. The farmers were not seeking unity, but wanted fair treatment. The speaker charged that other parties had incorporated Liberal planks in more radical platforms and claimed as their own. He advocated state health insurance, a fair "work and wages" plan, and a fluctuating interest rate for farmers. The Liberal party, concluded Mr. Whitney-Griffiths, was in favor of developing the natural resources for the benefit of the majority and not a few.

CADBORO BAY SEA SCOUTS

The meetings of the First Cadboro Bay Sea Scouts were reopened on October 6. Patrol corners were reopened by the patrol leaders, while Pop Leader, Major, reviewed the state of the troop in the tenderfoot tent. Games were played later. On October 13 P. Harwood gave the top a review in the sea work learned this year. Following this Major Wise gave a talk on sea scouting. Patrol corners were fixed up, and afterwards, games were played. Kelp, which is used for fertilizer, is being gathered and sold by the pop. Money earned in this way is used for the troop's boat, and various other expenses. Anyone wishing to help is asked to phone Garden 32.

Backache, Kidneys Weak

WHEN your kidneys are in bad condition with pain across back, frequent urinating at night, swollen ankles, or other distressing symptoms, try Dr. Pierce's Anuric. Read what Mrs. Earl Swift of 608 Park St., Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "My kidneys have been bad at different times and I never failed to have the backache. The heavy ache across my kidneys lasted for weeks at a time and made me miserable. My kidneys were weak and often called me up at night. Headaches and other ailments were other complaints. Dr. Pierce's Anuric completely drove away every sign of kidney complaint. And, best of all, I have not been troubled with backache or kidney complaint since I took them."

Young People's Church Societies

METROPOLITAN Y.P.S.

"Harvest Thanksgiving" was the theme for the regular meeting of the Metropolitan Young People's Society Monday evening. Group meetings came first on the programme, at which marks for attendance were given.

A sing-song conducted by Miss Enid Church, with Miss Molly Laity at the piano, was held in the schoolroom, after which about seventy-five young people filed upstairs to a room which was decorated with cornstalks and flowers.

After the members were seated in a circle, Miss Molly Laity took charge of a brief worship service, which had for its theme "Let All the People Praise Him." The call to worship was given by Miss Hazel McPhee, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come" was sung, a reading entitled "The House of Many Lamps" was given by Miss Molly Laity, followed by the singing of "Sing to the Lord of Harvest."

Don McCain announced that the drama festival under the auspices of the Young People's Union of the United Church of Victoria will be held in the Metropolitan schoolroom on Monday and Tuesday evenings, October 23 and 24, instead of October 24 and 25, as previously announced.

Elbert Wood, leader of Group "B," was in charge of the study period, during which two papers were read, one on "Sowing the Seed" by Reita Keeler, and the other on "Harvesting" by Ruth Alimblad. Catherine Craig gave a clever dramatic reading, after which cornstalks were found in the cornstalks and read.

Popcorn and apples were much enjoyed by all present. The singing of popular songs brought a pleasant evening to a close.

GIRLS' COUNCIL

The annual meeting of the Victoria Girls' Council will be held in the City Temple Hall on Saturday afternoon, October 21, at 5:45 o'clock. After the reading of reports and financial statement, the election of officers for the new term will take place. Willena Graham, representative of the Victoria Council to the Senior Provincial C.C. camp at Ocean Park last summer, will present her impressions of the camp.

It is hoped that a full representation of the churches of Victoria will attend the first and most important meeting of the new term.

DRAMA FESTIVAL

The drama festival under the auspices of the United Church Young People's Union will consist of seven comedy dramas and will be staged next Monday and Tuesday evenings in the Metropolitan schoolroom.

The challenge trophy which has been donated by J. W. Spencer will be presented following the plays on Tuesday evening.

ST. JOHN'S A.Y.P.A.

An interesting and enjoyable concert was presented by St. John's A.Y.P.A. Monday evening, when a motion picture programme was made possible by the co-operation of Douglas Flintoff, who explained the pictures as they were shown. The first two reels, "A Jaunt Around London," featured very interesting scenes and sights of the metropolis, a scenic reel of Mt. Rainier showed fine views from an educational standpoint, and a comedy, "Catch 'Em Young," brought a pleasing evening to a close.

ALBERNI COUNCIL

RECEIVES PRAISE

Special to The Times
Alberni, Oct. 19.—If outward appearances are any criterion the Alberni City council is successfully coping with one of the most difficult years in its history. At the council's last regular meeting Monday evening, reports were submitted by every committee. The affairs of the municipality were said to be well taken care of and evidence was given to show that there are at least two citizens offering praise to the works committee and especially the works foreman, J. Vucor, for excellent work done.

Application to use the new school grounds for pasture purposes was rejected. Ald. Patterson reported the purchase of 100 feet of new hose for the fire department, and action was deferred on a resolution submitted by

HUDSON'S BAY
SIGN FLASHES

First Hi-Tensity Neon Sign in Canada Installed Here

Mayor Leeming Turns Switch
for Huge "H.B.C." Flare

The brightness of the many colored lights which transform Douglas Street at night was greatly increased yesterday evening when at 8 o'clock Mayor David Leeming pressed the switch which turned on the new Hi-Tensity sign over the Hudson's Bay Company's store. The three fifteen-foot letters, H.B.C., simple and modern, lit up the surrounding buildings like daylight. The new sign is the first of its type in Canada, and is claimed to be from twenty-five to fifty times brighter than the ordinary neon tube. The Hi-Tensity tube was installed by Neon Products of Western Canada Limited, and gives light of slightly blue tint.

Before inaugurating the new sign Mayor Leeming congratulated the Hudson's Bay Company, saying that it was pleasant to see that although the oldest firm in Canada, it was also the most progressive. He also congratulated the Victoria branch of Neon Products of Western Canada Limited on their enterprise in securing the first installation of the new system in Canada for the city of Victoria. In conclusion the Mayor said that he hoped that the Hudson's Bay Company would continue in the future to serve the people of Victoria as well as and as successfully as it had done in the past.

In reply to Mayor Leeming, A. J. Watson, manager of the Victoria branch of Hudson's Bay store, thanked him for his kind feelings towards the company, and congratulated him on the birthday which he celebrated yesterday. He then presented the Mayor with a copy of the history of the Hudson's Bay Company, by Sir William Schoolcraft, K.B.E., as a memento of the inauguration.

Among those present in Mr. Watson's office for the simple inauguration ceremony were: Jack H. Trace, manager of the western division of Neon Products of Canada Limited; C. Harford, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Horne, Miss M. Grimmon, Mrs. Abbott, B. L. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Woolard, J. A. Walsh, D. L. Thurston, C. O. Banner, H. A. Stein, W. G. Florence, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Keith, "Copson," Miss W. McCarry, Miss M. and R. Watson, and Mr. J. Watson, Miss M. McMillan, C. B. O'Neill, Miss E. Roff, and T. C. Brain.

NORMAN BROWN
AT COLWOOD

C.C.F. Candidate in Esquimalt
Discusses Party Systems

At Colwood Hall Tuesday evening, Norman Brown, C.C.F. candidate for the Esquimalt riding, was given a very attentive hearing when he spoke to an audience of about seventy-five people on the aims and objects of the C.C.F. platform. Mr. Brown reviewed at length the financial aspects of the party systems. People living in a land unsurpassed by any country in the world, with an abundance of natural resources, were not allowed the full use of those resources he claimed, citing water power, which, instead of being used for irrigation, was allowed to flow into the ocean, while crops were allowed to dry through necessary water being withheld owing to excessive water charges, made by the people in charge of the water. The candidate promised when the C.C.F. came into power, water and the other resources would be used for the benefit of the community as a whole instead of being wasted as at present.

T. Guy Sheppard, C.C.F. candidate for Victoria, spoke in support of Mr. Brown.

Several questions were asked and answered, one regarding small deposits in banks, to which Mr. Sheppard replied in the nationalization of the larger public utilities and with the central bank the small depositors would not lose their deposits.

Owing to meetings in Victoria, Rev. Robert Connell was unable to be present to speak in support of Mr. Brown. J. D. Mitchell presided.

PLAN TO COLLECT
WATER ACCOUNTS

Special to The Times
Port Alberni, Oct. 19.—A plan to collect arrears in water rates was adopted by the Port Alberni city council this week when the water superintendent canvassed all delinquents and disconnected the services of those who could not pay up.

Those who were unable to pay the full amount but professed willingness to settle up by means of reasonable monthly instalments, were allowed to retain the service.

Such action has been considered necessary by the council in view of the fact that owing to the relaxation of regulations during the last three years the arrears in water accounts have accumulated to a staggering figure for a municipality of this size. Could all be collected, the council will not only be able to meet all obligations during the next two and a half months but will end the year with a surplus.

POOLEY ONLY
FURLED FLAG

Has Not Hauled Down Party
Colors, Attorney-General
Tells Audience

Attorney-General Pooley, the Unionist candidate in Esquimalt, told an audience of women in St. Paul's Hall yesterday afternoon that he had not hauled down his party's colors, but had merely furled his flag, as he had done in the federal election of 1917.

He again stressed the point that whether the public liked it or not it would have a union government after November 2.

"The great problems of the hour cannot be settled by the old party system," he said. "When the present government goes out on November 2 it goes so with a clean record. We have made our mistakes. We all do. Our major fault has been that we have not advertised enough. We have not had the support from the press that we should have had. But we have not a blight on our escutcheon."

Mr. Pooley termed the C.C.F. movement a menace and stated women of the province had great responsibilities to-day, greater than ever before, in combating it. He declared the C.C.F. emanated from Russia and quoted an article from the paper "Commonwealth" which said: "The object of the C.C.F. is to establish a planned socialist commonwealth just as the Soviet is attempting to do in Russia."

Supporting Mr. Pooley on the platform were Mrs. Alice Townley, the Unionist candidate in Vancouver-Point Grey, and Hon. Joshua Hinchcliffe.

Mrs. Townley enlarged upon the Unionist theme, declaring that "the country comes before any political prestige." No government could completely satisfy everyone in British Columbia at the present time, she said. The province was sharing part of the world-wide condition which the government had had no part in creating. Large expenditures were made during the boom times, aiming at social betterment, but these would be termed inexcusable extravagances under present conditions.

WARNS AGAINST C.C.F.

The speaker warned the women not to vote C.C.F. The movement might be sincere enough but it was not practical, she said. It was undertaking to do things which it could not because they were controlled from Ottawa.

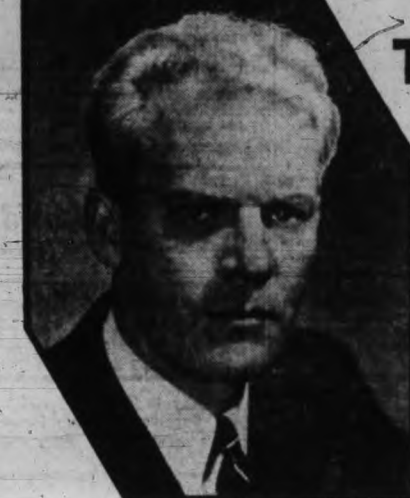

"In Russia there is lots of work, but you don't hear much about the good wages or the home comforts," Mrs. Townley said. "The ideal condition is work for everyone at a living wage. In this country there are people with too much money, but there are ways of distributing it without hitting them over the head before taking it away from them."

Mr. Hinchcliffe, in his address, enlarged upon some of the points made by Mr. Pooley, urging the audience to support the Unionist party.

A musical programme was presented with the following artists taking part: Miss Dennison, contralto; Major and Mrs. J. A. P. Crompton, duet, and Allister McVie, Mrs. Crompton was the accompanist.

Mrs. B. R. Bowden was the chairman and Mrs. Charles Smith was convener of the tea.

"Demanding performance at my price made me hard to please... but I'm satisfied"

"A moderate salary—many would call it 'small'—didn't keep me from getting the radio I wanted. But I will admit it took me a long time to line up the performance I insisted upon with the price I could afford. My salary said 'low price' and I wanted 'outstanding tone and performance.'"

"After all, when you consider the millions of dollars of entertainment offered free to radio owners—it's certainly being 'penny wise and pound foolish' to own a cheap set. But even though his taste may run high, a salaried man must watch the dollars and cents."

"My wife agrees with me that this new Victor offers what I've always demanded... a real musical instrument at my price. And that means value! Tone—selectivity—ability to reach out for those Woe to Middle-aged Widower Who Heeds Ungrateful Children's Demand Not to Marry—Shall Wife Quit Marriage Vow Because Husband Did?

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a man fifty-five. Have been a widower for fifteen years. When my beloved wife died leaving me with three children. I resolved not to bring a stepmother to rule over them, but to dedicate my life to them until they were grown and capable of making their own way in life. I have done this, and as I have been a prosperous business man I have given them every advantage that money could buy. Now the two oldest are grown and out on their own, having successful careers and the youngest is in college. This leaves me entirely alone. About nine months ago I met a woman of refinement, culture and with a heart of gold with whom I have fallen in love and whom I want to marry, but my children are bitter against it. No objection to the woman in question, just that they don't want me to marry anyone. What shall I do? UNHAPPY HUGH.

Answer—Say no more to your selfish and ungrateful children, but go off quietly and marry the lady of your heart. They will probably raise ructions and say many things that will hurt you and for which they will be sorry, but the storm will pass like a summer shower and the time will come when they will be thankful that you have established your own life instead of being a hanger-on on theirs.

As things go in these days you are in the prime of life and can confidently look forward to many more years of existence. These last decades should be the happiest time of your life because you have come to the reaping after the sowing and can garner in the harvest over which you have toiled and sweated so many years. You have come to the time when you can slack down in your work, when you can travel and enjoy things, but you can only find happiness in this latter part of the journey if you have a loved and agreeable companion to bear you company. No man is more lonely and forlorn than the middle-aged man wandering around the world alone.

Children very often oppose their fathers' and mothers' marrying, even after they are grown and no longer need a stepmother or step-father. They have a fierce jealousy of mother or father caring for anyone more than he or she does for them, and they do not stop to think that they themselves are putting someone above mother or father in their own hearts.

Also, children never get over their infantile impression that father and mother are as old as Methuselah and beyond all emotions of love and desire or any human longing for an independent life or for a home of their own or a congenial mate. They feel that all that mother or father should care for is them and their interests and that the liveliest amusement they should crave is preparing for death.

So it is horrifying to them to think that mother is considering marriage at forty or forty-five, or father dreaming of taking a wife at fifty or fifty-five, and they do not even ask what mother and father are to do with the quarter of a century or more that they probably have left to them.

If the children were wiser and had more experience of life, they would urge their father or mother to marry, not only for their parents' sake, but for their own, because it settles so many of the problems that disrupt so many households.

For widowed fathers or mothers must do one of three things. They must live alone when their children have left the home nest and gone about the business of life for themselves, and this is a dreary and forlorn state for those who are growing old and who need companionship and for somebody to go about with of an evening or at one of the other side of the hearthstone.

Any dutiful child must have a tug on his or her sympathies thinking of mother's dull evenings playing solitaire or knitting, with no company but the cat, or of father with no one to sew on his buttons or minister to him but sloppy servants who neglect him.

Or a son or a daughter must give up marriage in order to stay at home and take care of widowed father or mother and themselves be left solitary and alone in his or her old age.

Or the widowed father or mother whose children would not let them marry must go and live with his or her married children where he or she will be miserable and discontented and the cause of ceaseless bickering between husband and wife and the grandchildren.

Far, far better for all concerned for the middle-aged widow and widower to marry and maintain their own homes, have their own interests and the companionship of one of their own age. And foolish are the children who do not give papa or mamma their blessings and speed them on their way.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is one of the men with a wandering foot and he is always chasing some woman. He spends his money on his lady loves and doesn't support my son and me and I am desperate and am thinking of taking the easy way. I have travelled the hard, straight road and got nothing in the end, and if I would go the other way I would at least have good times, pretty clothes, parties and the gay life. What do you think of it? PEGGY.

Answer—Well, Peggy, I don't think that two wrongs ever yet made a right, nor do I think that because a man wishes on his marriage-vows it gives his wife a right to quit on hers. Besides, it seems to me that if a child has a rotter for a father it is all the more important for him to have a good mother.

Great Men of Science

HEINRICH HERTZ

Listening to the most famous of all living university professors, there may be a student who will win equal, or greater fame in years to come.

Hertz went to a small city near the Rhine River, and became a teacher of physics. In this town—Cologne—he made the discovery which helped so much to lead to the radio. While holding a loop of wire in his hand, with the ends not quite close, he "captured" a spark produced in another part of his laboratory.

What did that mean? It meant that a spark could produce another spark at a distant point! It meant that without the help of a wire between, electricity could be made to go from one place to another.

Hertz gave further study to electromagnetic waves, measuring their length and speed. His work brought wide attention. A British scientist exclaimed, "Here is a new and astonishing world! Here is the possibility of telegraphy without wires, posts or cables!"

Sad to say, this fine young scientist died at the age of thirty-six. Had he lived longer, he might have done much more. As it was, his work paved the way for Marconi and others to bring forth the wireless telegraph, and later the radio.
